

1,800 extra Police: Highlights

Community-focused Policing

121 Extra officers for Precision Targeting Teams

in every district – working with intelligence analysts to target prolific offenders to strengthen community resilience.

455 More officers in Police's frontline emergency response to respond to calls for service and boost support for regional communities.

325 More officers in prevention- focused positions

working to help our youth, prevent family harm, and reduce repeat offending.

187 New investigators

focused on current and historic complex cases including sexual assault and child protection.

12 Positions at The Royal New Zealand Police College

to train new recruits and provide other specialist courses to upskill our people.

Combatting serious and organised crime

500 National-level investigators and specialists

to combat serious criminal threats here and abroad – including national security, organised, financial and cyber-crime.

146 Investigators for serious and organised crime taskforces

in every district – to support local and national-level colleagues to reduce harm from serious offenders, methamphetamine, and other gang-related crime.

54 New Crime and Drug Prevention Officers

in district based positions working to provide pathways away from crime and addiction, including for the young and those on the periphery of gang life.

$6m Annually to lift our tactical, technical, and research capability to help target and prevent harm from organised crime and drugs.