

Police Remembrance Day 2021

*With Roll of Honour
1886-2021*

29 SEPTEMBER 2021

NEW ZEALAND
POLICE
Ngā Pirihimana o Aotearoa

Huia e!

Huia tangata kotahi.

He tōtara kua hinga.

The feather of the huia,
for someone special.
One dearly departed.

The story behind the Police Remembrance Day Pin

The Police Remembrance Day Pin was developed by the Police Association and New Zealand Police, who have been working together to raise the profile of Police Remembrance Day in the hearts and minds of police staff and the general public nationwide.

Now lost to us, the Huia bird's tail plumage is something rare and special. To wear it is considered by Māori to be a great honour. By incorporating the Police chevron into the Huia tail feather, the design of the pin symbolises the honouring of someone special, now lost to Police.

Police staff throughout New Zealand take part in Police Remembrance Day by wearing the pin to honour the memory of those police officers slain while carrying out their police duties.

Money raised through sales of the pin will go to the Police Families Charitable Trust for the families of New Zealand police officers who have been slain while carrying out their police duties.

The New Zealand, Australian and South Pacific Region Police Remembrance Day Commemoration

Commemoration

Instead of a national service, Remembrance Day on 29 September 2021 is being marked by a virtual commemoration.

Background to Remembrance Day

The 1989 Conference of Commissioners of Police of Australasia and the South West Pacific Region decided that an annual Remembrance Day service should be held for police staff who died in office during the previous 12 months. The conference agreed that the services should be held on 29 September each year, which is the Feast Day of the Archangel Michael, the Patron Saint of Police.

Memorial Wall and flags

The Memorial Wall is located at The Royal New Zealand Police College in Porirua. It honours the 33 police and traffic officers slain on duty since the beginning of New Zealand Police in 1886.

During this year's wreath laying the New Zealand flag and the Police flag are displayed on either side of the Memorial Wall. The Police flag is accorded the same recognition that the colours are accorded in the armed forces. These recognise those who have laid down their lives in the course of their duties.

National Anthem

Words by Thomas Bracken
(1841 – 1898)

E Ihowā Atua,
O ngā iwi mātou rā
Āta whakarangona;
Me aroha noa
Kia hua ko te pai;
Kia tau tō atawhai;
Manaakitia mai
Aotearoa

God of Nations, at Thy feet,
in the bonds of love we meet;
hear our voices we entreat,
God defend our free land!
Guard Pacific's triple star
from the shafts of strife and war,
make her praises heard afar;
God defend New Zealand!

Laying of the Wreaths

Each year wreaths are laid at the Memorial Wall on Remembrance Day. The wreaths are laid in memory of New Zealand Police employees who were slain on duty or died as a result of their Police duties, serving employees who died during the past 12 months, members of Australian and South Pacific Police services who have died on duty, and the former employees of the New Zealand Police who died in the past 12 months.

Piper

A New Zealand Police Pipe Band member plays 'The Dark Island' lament while the wreaths are laid.

Prayer - Karakia

Padre David Dell, Police Chaplain, closes the commemoration with a prayer.

Haka

Recruit Wing 346 performs the haka to the Memorial Wall to honour all who have served before them.

The haka was written for New Zealand Police by Rahui Papa from Ngāti Korokī-Kahukura, Waikato-Tainui, an advisor and speaker for King Tūheitia and a member of the Police Commissioner's Māori Focus Forum.

Message from Commissioner Andrew Coster

Tēnā koutou katoa,

The 29th of September is an important day for us in the New Zealand Police. Police Remembrance Day is our opportunity to pause, reflect and remember, and to be thankful for those who have gone before us and made this organisation what it is today.

This is a day of remembrance not just in New Zealand – today our colleagues in Australia and the South Pacific region will also be taking some time to remember their colleagues and loved ones.

In New Zealand Police on this day we remember the 33 New Zealand police and traffic officers who have been slain on duty and the 65 staff who died as a result of performing their duties since our organisation was formed in 1886. We remember their bravery, dedication to their duty and the ultimate sacrifice they made.

We also remember all serving, retired and former staff who have passed away in the previous 12 months, and we look further afield to honour the police officers from Australia and the South Pacific who lost their lives on duty.

This year I particularly acknowledge the 100th anniversary a month ago of Constable James Dorgan, whose life was tragically taken while on duty in Timaru, and the sad first anniversary in June of Constable Matthew Hunt's death.

I also acknowledge the decade anniversaries of other officers slain on duty: Sergeant William Cooper and Constables Edward Best, Frederick Jordan and Percy Tulloch in 1941; and Sergeant William Hughes in 1951.

No matter how much time has passed, we remain firm in our resolve to remember our fallen officers.

This is also a day for families and colleagues to remember their special people. I give my aroha and sincere condolences to those of you who are grieving.

New Zealand Police is held in high regard because of such people, whether it's through their courage, compassion, or dedication to their roles, or all of those elements.

I thank the families for sharing their loved ones with the New Zealand Police and for the love and support given to help them carry out their police roles.

Even though we are not holding the usual National Remembrance Service this year at the Royal New Zealand Police College, wreaths will still be laid at the Memorial Wall and the Police Haka, performed by recruits, will still ring out.

This year, as we do every year, we will remember. Ka maumahara tonu tātou ki a rātou.

Andrew Coster

Commissioner of Police

Message from Minister of Police the Honourable Poto Williams

To the Police whānau,

My deepest condolences to you on this day of remembrance.

It is an honour to participate in Police Remembrance Day, although from afar, as we remember members of Police who are no longer with us.

With the social distancing requirements, this year's commemoration is different, but still as important as ever.

Remembrance Day is also a day of significance for the community, because of the role that police play in the community.

I have the privilege of regularly seeing wonderful feedback from the public across New Zealand about our police service. This shows me the huge respect that New Zealanders have for the work our members of police do to help and protect them.

I believe the New Zealand Police provides the ultimate public service by making our communities safer and having a meaningful impact on people's lives every single day and night.

With that service unfortunately does come risk, and the Roll of Honour is a painful reminder of the dangers our officers face while they work hard to make New Zealand a better place in which to live.

To the families of those we're remembering, thank you for all the support you gave your loved ones through the ups and downs that invariably arise in any job. Their success in their work was your success too.

Therefore on Remembrance Day I honour you also, and share with you your pride in your loved ones' service to the New Zealand Police.

On behalf of the Government and the people of New Zealand, I thank all members of Police for their commitment and service, and for making our communities safer, better places – as I've said, the ultimate public service.

Ngā mihi,

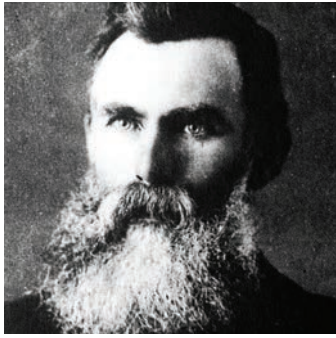

Honourable Poto Williams
Minister of Police
